Video Game Creation enables children to apply math, science and language arts skills in a context that is fun and engaging for children. Each child works at his or her own pace on curriculum matched to age and prior game making experience. Object oriented program and game design skills are developed as each child creates one or more games that can be played and shared at home.

Digital Animation teaches children how to turn their creative story ideas into animated movie productions using a computer and a variety of tools to bring the action to life from concept to final production.

Participants in either program will have access to their creations via the Internet after the last class.
